

Taking Care of Your Diabetes

Having diabetes means you have too much sugar (glucose) in your blood. High amounts of sugar in the blood can harm your body. Keeping blood sugar close to healthy levels can prevent serious health issues.

Healthy Blood Sugar Levels

Before eating a meal	Between 80 - 130
One to two hours after eating a meal	Less than 180

Your range may be different if you have other health conditions or if your blood sugar is often too high or low. Always follow your provider's recommendations.

Five Steps to a Healthier Blood Sugar Level

1	Track your blood sugar	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Check your levels two to four times a day • Get an A1c Screening regularly – The A1c shows your average blood sugar level over the past three months
2	Healthy eating and drinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Eat every four to five hours • Drink water – Limit caffeinated and sugary drinks
3	Move your body	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Daily exercise, at least 10 minutes at a time
4	Take diabetes medicine (if prescribed)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Know when, how and why to take your medicine
5	Visit your provider (at least twice a year)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Go over your diabetes visit checklist • Talk about diabetes screening
